Mrs. F. Gordon Carr and Countess Cathcart. The latter has won a stay until Tuesday at least for a court ordered immigration officials to have her there then.

Marchioness of Queensbury, another Englishwoman who would be subject to deportation under the ruling that closed the doors of the U. S. A. to the vivacious Vera.

Sir Broderick Hartwell, dashing member of British society, who also would share the fate of the Countess Cathcart if he came to America just now.

Members of the U. S. Supreme Court, who may be asked to finally decide the fate of the Countess Cathcart, are Judge Taft, Brandeis, Holmes and Van de Yuster. (Photos by E. N. E.)

Duke of Westminster, whose ventures in love would mark him as a fair target under the Cathcart deportation edict. He is but one member of British royalty who is hard hit by the action of the authorities in the Cathcart-Craven case.

Duke of Marlborough, another favorite of London court circles affected by the ruling against the "stoned and branded" Vera. He probably will take a leaf from the experience of Lord Craven and stay in his own backyard.

GAVE HIS LIFE

H. A. Johnson, ironsman, of Portland.

Luther Lett, the agent, was in the depot when he heard the crash of the fire alighting the freight car on the siding.

Signaling the huge masses of metal and wood toppling toward the combination depot and dwelling house, Lett leaped through a window, dove into a snowbank and burrowed deep as the fire front of the structure crept in this paper where he had been sitting.

In the dwelling part of the building Mrs. Lett was thrown from a chair by the force of the impact.

Every coach of the passenger train was derailed and the track were torn up for hundreds of feet, but no passenger reported injury other than a shaking up and shock.

Nor did any of the passenger train crew suffer injury. Engineer George B. Coochworth was innocently reported as injured at first. His fireman was John Hazard of Portland and his conductor, Frank Woodcock of Portland.

According to the story told by trainmen, Freight Engineer Horne had taken his train on the siding to allow the Portland-to-Boston express to go by.

Spencer, the freight brakeman, who was thirty-one years old and the father of one child in Portland, had gone to throw the switch when the main line should be clear again.

COACH IN FLAMES.

All six of the men were taken to St. John's Hospital in Lowell.

Following the crash, the electric coach burst into flames and a fire alarm was sounded.

Crew's clothing caught fire in the blaze and it was necessary for rescuers to roll him in a snowbank before the flames were extinguished.

Ambulances and firemen racing to the railroad yards were greatly slowed up by snow and the bad condition of the street.

WOMAN AIDS INJURED.

Meanwhile Mrs. Lydia Craig of London street had raced the 50 yards of snow and ice intervening between her home and the wreck and had taken the injured men back to her house where she treated them until the ambulances came.

Macomber, who was driving the new coach, said he was proceeding through the yards at eight miles an hour and had just emerged from behind a side-tracked freight car when he saw the engine bearing down upon him.

The new vehicle had no signal to give notice of its approach and the freight car blocked both his vision and that of the locomotive engineer until they both were almost together.

Macomber held the locomotive engineer blameless.

BATTLING NORTH END FLAMES

Firemen are shown battling the flames in the factory of the Commercial Reed and Rattan Furniture Company, No. 288 to 294 Commercial street, North End. Twenty persons, six of them women, fled from the building and two women were taken through the smoke to safety. There were two alarms and the damage was estimated at $12,000.

Twenty persons, including six women, fled today in a two-alarm fire at the factory of the Commercial Reed and Rattan Furniture Company, in the three-story brick building which extends from No. 288 to 294 Commercial street, North End. Two women employees of the company were helped through smoke-filled corridors and stairways from the second floor by James H. McLeod, a workman.

Firemen fought the flames from three sides of the building and kept them confined to the section of the structure occupied by the furniture factory. Damage was estimated at $12,000. The fire started from an unknown cause in the paint shop in the rear of the third floor.

BIMBA IS AFTER FANEUIL HALL FOR SPEECH

MALEONE TO SPEAK.

Bimbas and Dudley Field Malone, famous defender of Rooses in the evolution trial at Dayton, Tenn., last summer, will defend the right of free speech from the steps of City Hall in that city if no other hall can be procured. H. Eldner Bloomfield, chairman of the Worcester branch of the league, declared.

Bimbas, admitted in Brockton that he attended and delivered a eulogy at the Bolshevik funeral of a woman in Hudson where activities of alleged "Reds" have stirred up considerable commotion.

He also announced that in place of the two Brockton halls denied him and his followers, he will lead a flying squadron of speakers next Tuesday night on the eve of his trial to speak at Lithuanian Hall, Lynch Hall and Vaca in widely separated parts of Brockton, which he now claims to have permits for.

CENTER OF COMMUNE.

Brockton is the center of Communism in New England, according to Rev. John B. Swadsky, pastor of St. Rocco's Lithuanian Catholic Church in that city.

The priest today compared Brockton with Brooklyn and Chicago as "the center for men of Bimba's type," and declared that here are more than 1,000 self-confessed Communists on the north and east sides of the city.

Many Communist organizations here dispute themselves as dramatic and literary societies, he said.

A heavy guard of police will be on hand at the courthouse when Bimba goes on trial.

Meanwhile the defense of Bimba was moving forward today, with the latest counsel lining up a long train of witnesses from among those who were in Bimba's audience when he delivered the speech in which he is alleged to have been blasphemous.

There is doubt, however, as to whether Bimba will have the services of either Dudley Field Malone or Clarence Darrow, standard lawyers for John Scopes at Dayton, Tenn., it being declared today by Bimba's counsel that neither noted lawyer has been retained.

BUTLER HELD GUILTY IN THEFT FROM EMPLOYER

Charles Miller, 26, of Riverside street, Auburndale, was arrested in his home today charged with larceny from Francis C. Deane, a cotton manufacturer, in whose household he worked as a butler. Miller was found guilty in Dedham court and given two months' sentence, from which he appealed. Only a small part of the missing things were recovered in the Miller home, police said. The Cobbs valued the loot at $150.

Montpelier, Vt., Feb. 19.—I was arrested four times before I lost my liberty.

My first arrest was last August when I got off with a fine of $500. My second capture, in November, under fire, resulted in my liberation by mistake from North Stratford (N. H.) jail and Harry Murdock, my helper, was jailed in default of a $1,000 fine.

My third arrest, early in December, occurred while I was alone at the wheel, bound from White River Junction to Lishon, N. H. I was taken into custody in Littleton, merely on suspicion. My car was seized and is still held there in spite of the fact that I didn't have a drop of liquor aboard.

There were suspicious doings in the Littleton affair. I was rounded up then solely on my previous arrests. I was taken into a stuffy little room and confronted by six men, each of whom took part in the searching third degree to which I was subjected.

Third Degree

I was tried out when they began. They kept questioning me for hours without food or intermission. The room was so filled with tobacco smoke that it was suffocating. Any

HOT RIFLE BATTLE TO NAB RUM BOAT

PICKING THEIR GOODS FROM PILE OF BURGLARS' LOOT

SEA GUARDS ATTACKED TWICE

Only Prisoner Taken Makes Escape as Bullets Whine;
135 Gallons Aboard

A pitched battle with rifles between rum runners and coast guardsmen ended today with the capture of the rum boat 417D, said to be the prize speed craft of the rum fleet, on the beach in Cohasset Harbor.

The battle for possession of the boat and its cargo of 135 gallons of Dutch alcohol took place when the coast guards had driven the boat ashore in a wild chase through the fog.

As their boat grounded in shallow water near the beach, the rum smugglers leaped over the sides and waded ashore while the crew of the patrol boat 2188 sent a fusillade of lead and steel whinging in their direction.

DRUGGIST HELD AS 'FENCE' IN THIEF RING

As three Somerville residents and one from Revere, at the Brighton police station today, were identifying loot recovered after many flat burglaries, Oliver T. Emery of Medford was being arraigned in Charlestown court, charged with receiving stolen goods.

Emery, a drug store proprietor in Charlestown, but living in Leyden street, Medford, is one of the three men under arrest in connection with a long series of burglaries in Greater Boston during the past months.

In court today he pleaded not guilty to receiving 15,743 worth of stolen goods, and was held in $5,000 bail for hearing Wednesday.

Also under arrest are John J. McCarthy, alias Sweeney of Kingston street, Charlestown, and Phil Rackowitz, who is in Charlestown jail awaiting a jury trial in Superior Court.

Much of the loot recovered by the police was identified today by the Somerville and Revere residents as stolen from their homes.

Those making identifications were Claude E. Perkins of No. 167 Broadway, Joseph D. Mathewson of No. 23 Walnut street, and Lillian E. Smith of No. 69 Adams street, all Somerville, and one Revere woman.

POSTAL CLERK IS SUICIDE BY SHOOTING

Providence, Feb. 19.—David Howard, thirty-eight, a clerk in the cashier's department of the Providence postoffice, committed suicide today in the Postoffice Building by shooting himself through the head with a .45 calibre army revolver.

City Dark at 3 P. M., Offices Light Up

A pall of darkness settled over Boston shortly before 3 o'clock, causing the turning on of lights in all office buildings and closely resembling nightfall.

Although the street lights were not turned on, the twilight was so pronounced that they were needed. Automobiles picked their way through the streets with headlights burning and traffic was considerably slowed down.

Providence, Feb. 19.—Four members of the local Communist club have left their place of employment, as a result of the charges made by Rev. John T. Mullen that his life had been threatened.

Peter Breen, accused by the priest of having threatened him, left his job in a shoe factory, and today his wife drew his pay. The same action was taken by three other men in another plant. No information could be obtained as to what had become of the men, but it was reported that Breen had gone to Boston.

Joseph Milashuk, owner of a building occupied by the Hudson Lithuanian club in whose quarters it was reported a Communist school was conducted, notified the club today that the premises must be vacated March 1.

Since the Rev. Fr. Mullen's charges that a Christian woman was buried with only Communist service, the priest claims the rage of the "reds" has flared up, resulting in desecration of the cemetery and other foul play.

Following a conference with the aged priest, Chief Maguire left for Boston to seek Federal assistance in combating advocates of revolt against government and church.

HARVARD TAKES VOTE ON DRY LAW

White a nation waits breathless Harvard votes on the momentous question of prohibition.

Today every student who lives in a college "dorm" received a post card ballot from the Harvard Liberal Club, asking his preference as to whether the Volstead law should remain as is or be amended to permit the sale of light wines and beer.

War, too, played a part in the post-card questionnaire. The first question was: "Should Harvard's statement of military science be left as is, made compulsory, or abolished altogether?"

Another was: "Should Harvard have a war memorial, and if so what form should it take?"

Since the Rev. Fr. Mullen's charges that a Christian woman was buried with only Communist service, the priest claims the rage of the "reds" has flared up, resulting in desecration of the cemetery and other foul play.

HEAD OF CHELSEA VICE SAYS HE 'WORKED 24-HOUR DAY'

Victim, pugilist, wanted by the Boston police.

NAMED VITO SLAYERS.

Belcher said that Friedman first gave him the names "Riesner" and "Frankie Pesta." Then the convict himself wrote down, "Zip, Flash, Campbell and Dora."

The witness told of a second trial so Friedman in prison. On this occasion, he testified, Friedman told him that he had been visited by Goldmann, a Department of Justice agent.

The Department of Justice man, according to the sergeant's version of the convict's story, had said that if Friedman could get lobster in country against Mayor Quigley and Tom Quigley the government's case would be complete.

"I told Friedman," concluded the witness, "that I would be a party to no such plan, but would tell the truth."

Belcher further testified that Friedman had given him other valuable information that resulted in the arrest of wanted men, including members of the Joe Egan gang.

Mrs. Sophie Isenberg of Chelsea declared last Fall that Assistant U. S. District Attorney Elmer D. Stone had promised to "take care" of her husband, Nathan Isenberg, liquor seller, if he would testify against the wholesale liquor dealers of Chelsea.

Testimony to that effect was given by Sergeant Walter A. Barden of the Chelsea police, the first of the sixteen defendants to testify in the case.

Barden, under red-cross examination by his counsel, Attorney William Clark, told of a visit which he and Mrs. Sophie Isenberg made to her home in Chelsea the day before the present trial started last Fall.

TELLS OF WOMAN'S VISIT.

He said the woman was accompanied by her husband, Nathan Isenberg, and a friend named Clem Klumacher.

Mrs. Isenberg, according to the witness, told him she was afraid her husband was "killing away," and sought advice from the police sergeant.

Barden quoted the woman as saying she had seen Asst. District Attorney Stone, and that he told her he would take care of her husband.

her he would take care of her husband if he would testify in the approaching trial in Federal Court against the Chelsea wholesalers.

The witness testified Mrs. Isenberg asked him if he thought it advisable for her to see Mr. Gordon, an attorney, who is the brother-in-law of Assistant District Attorney Stone.

Barden said he told her the best thing she could do was to see U. S. District Attorney Williams. The witness added he called his own automobile into the room to hear the advice he gave Mrs. Isenberg.

Sergeant Barden denied that during the years from 1922 to 1925 he had visited the office of Mayor Quigley each day before starting on the rounds with Inspector "Tom" Quigley, brother of the Mayor and a co-defendant.

ONLY ON CHIEF'S ORDERS.

The only occasions on which he visited the Mayor's office, the witness declared, were when he was ordered to do so by Chief of Police Charles Finn. These visits, Barden added, occurred only about four times each year.

In response to questioning the witness admitted he had talked with Mayor Quigley at times today, but the conversation had to do with promotions of sergeants in the Chelsea Police department.

Sergeant Barden, resuming the stand as the first witness of the day, was taken for cross-examination by United States District Attorney Harold P. Williams.

He was questioned regarding raids to which he had testified in direct examination and also the alleged conversation he had with Jacob (Jack) London, regarding London's alleged statement that he was going to do "a job on Tom Quigley."

AGAIN TELLS OF "THREAT."

Q—You said in substance that your conversation with Jack London was to the effect that he said he would do a proper job on Tom Quigley and send him away for a couple of years? A—I said that London had picked him up on a default warrant, that he had been looked up for half an hour, and that he said that when the Federal case came up he would send him away for a couple of years.

Pursuing the questions on the raids the witness had made, the district attorney pointed out in Barden's diary that the notation "day after" appeared in book on a day on which Barden testified he was in court.

Barden said: "It makes no difference if it was my day-off. I appeared in court and testified on that day. I work twenty-four hours a day."

The raid in question was on Louis (Lucky) place on Wintham street, Chelsea.

QUEZZED ABOUT MAYOR.

Q—How many times during 1922 and up to 1925 did you see Mayor Quigley, was it every day? A—No, sir.

Q—Didn't you go to his office every day with Tom Quigley before you started out on duty? A—No, sir; only when ordered to go there by the chief of police.

Q—Didn't you go there to receive instructions from Tom Quigley? A—No.

Then the witness was taken for re-direct by Attorney John P. Feeney.

Q—You were asked if you believed it good police work to seize certain stills instead of waiting until the owner arrived to find out who was operating them. What time of the day did this occur? A—Two or three o'clock in the afternoon. I climbed over a fence. Persons saw me and Officer Forbes going into the house. We got in there as quick as we could.

Q—If you do think it was good police work? I didn't know what was in there until I got in. So I never would come while we were there.

Then the witness was taken for re-direct by his own counsel, Attorney Clark.

Q—You were asked about testimony you gave at a certain time. Tell us what that was.

The witness said that he was summoned by Attorney Lewis, that he was put on the stand by Mr. Lewis and that he testified to an episode at a store at No. 17 Williams street.

Mrs. Clara Klumacher came to his home the day before the trial of the Chelsea wholesalers in the Federal Court.

WOMAN IN TEARS.

"Mrs. Isenberg," he said, "was crying. She said her husband was going to trial and that she was afraid he was going away. She said she wanted some advice. She told me that she went to get Mr. Stone and that Stone told her that he would take care of her husband if he testified at the trial of the wholesalers."

The witness further said that Mrs. Isenberg asked him if he thought she should go and see Mr. Gordon, who, the witness said, was married to Stone's sister. Witness said he told them to go and see Mr. Williams.

Barden testified further that Mrs. Isenberg also told him that her husband, Nathan, told her that he had given "wrong testimony at the trial."

Sergeant Barden was then examined by defense counsel, Attorney Joseph P. Walsh.

Q—In you know Michael Kingsley? A—Yes. Objecting and overruled.

Q—Was he a defendant in this case? A—Yes.

Then Attorney Walsh turned to the district attorney and said: "Mr. Williams, what is the disposition of the indictment against Kingsley?"

District Attorney Williams replied: "That is a matter of record. Mr. Walsh the clerk will read it."

The clerk said it was not pronounced.

Attorney Walsh turned again to the witness.

Q—Do you know Barnet Bernstein? A—Yes.

Q—Was he a defendant in this case? A—Yes.

CASES WERE NOT PROSECUTED.

Attorney Walsh then asked Clerk Mason the disposition of this case and was answered that it was not pronounced.

Q—You know Samuel Berth? A—

Yes.

Q—Was he a defendant in this case? A—Yes.

In answer to the question of the attorney the clerk said that this case was not pronounced also.

Q—Although Mr. Lewis' name appears in the papers in these cases is it not a fact that these three men were represented by George Gordon? A—I don't know that.

Q—Have you talked to Gordon about what he could do in this case? A—No.

TOLD HIM TO TELL TRUTH.

Sergeant Edward Belcher, of the Chelsea police, also a defendant, was next called to the stand by the defense. He said he is married and lives in Chelsea.

He was questioned by Attorney Stone.

Q—You know Samuel Berth? A—Yes.

Q—Mrs. Berth? A—Yes.

Q—Did you ever at any time receive a letter from Berth or Mrs. Berth? A—No.

Q—Did you at any time ask her for $5 a week, and later, did you tell her she should pay you $10 a week as she testified here? A—No.

Q—Do you know David Stone? A—Yes.

Q—Did you ever use him as what is known in common parlance as a stool-pigeon? Here Dist. Atty. Williams objected and Belcher returned the question.

Grief here during the recent trial on Court street, Stone had been in the district office and had been subpoenaed that if he didn't tell him right away to go to jail. He said the witness told him to tell the truth.

Q—What did you tell him? A—I told him to tell the truth.

Atty. Belcher then referred to Percy Friedman, the convict witness for the government.

Q—Did you ever use him as what is known in common parlance as a stool-pigeon? Here Dist. Atty. Williams objected and Belcher returned the question.

DESIRE UNDER ELMS' CAST Hi! ARRESTED

Arrested, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—The cast of "Desire Under the Elms," a play by Eugene O'Neill, was arrested here late last night on a charge of giving an improper play. Booked at Central police station, the players posted bail of $50 each. The arrests came at the close of the night's performance after the play had been attended by representatives of the Board of Education, Parents Teachers' Association, and social auditors and members of the police vice squad.

Those arrested were Frank McFlynn, Arthur Lubin, Forest Taylor, Norman Kravitz, Jessie Arnold, Margaret Weaver, Felix Hanes, Arthur Foster, Harry Danner, Allan Elder, Billie E. Leicester, Harriet J. Terry, Dorothy Meek, Jean Standish, Richard Shanon, Nina Campman and Ben Freeman.

The play was on its second week here. Previously it had a long run in New York. Immediately after its opening in Los Angeles it was attacked by several ministers.

"Desire Under the Elms" was banned from Boston during the Curley administration. City Censor Casey saw the play in New York and Mayor Curley acted upon his report. The producers were notified that the play could appear as planned in Boston only with many deletions of the line. They promptly cancelled their booking here, declaring that the play would be ruined by the deletion.

ACTRESS IN TOILS

Jessie Arnold, one of the cast of "Desire Under the Elms," all of whom were arrested at Los Angeles.

CLEAN BILL FOR ALUMINUM CO.

Washington, Feb. 19 (U.S.A.).—The Mellon-owned Aluminum Company of America has been given a clean bill of health by the Department of Justice after an independent investigation into charges that the concern was violating anti-trust laws. It was learned officially today. The department not only found the Mellon concern was not guilty of the practices charged by the Federal Trade Commission, but recommended that no further action be taken against the company.

The department's conclusions will be injected into the Senate battle, where a Democratic-Republican coalition hopes to force a senatorial investigation of the Mellon concern. It is followed by an independent proceeding similar to the process followed in the Teapot Dome case.

The Department of Justice, however, has decided the Mellon concern did not violate the anti-trust laws, but found enough evidence to warrant a separate investigation in to the affairs of the Aluminum Manufacturing Company, Mellon subsidiary.

CHIEF FOR BILLIONS
FOUND ON PRISONER

Springfield, Feb. 19.—Charles E. Maynard, 31, pleaded guilty in District Court to the theft of radio parts valued at $50 from the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. He was committed to the Department for Criminal Inmate at Bridgewater for observation. When the police searched Maynard they found a check drawn on the Chicago National Bank for $14,000,000,000.

PRINCE 'EDDIE' ON A HIKE IN MARKET DISTRICT

London, Feb. 19 (U.S.A.).—"Orry, look 'em 'ere!"

Thus commented a burly, white-smocked meat handler, trudging through the mazy cobblestone alleys of the great Smithfield market in the foggy early morning today.

The meat handler's surprise at seeing a dapper young man walking about watching the early morning sales was climaxed when he learned that it was none other than the Prince of Wales.

The Prince was at Smithfield on a tour of inspection. He said that he had come because his interest in meat handling had been aroused by visits to the Chicago stock yards and the Argentine and Canadian markets.

1,350 SHIPS QUIT BRITISH PORTS WITHOUT WIRELESS

London, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—The Mercantile Marine Department of the Board of Trade announced today that during the strike of wireless operators which began on November 26 and just ended, 1,350 ships fitted with wireless apparatus left ports in the United Kingdom without operators. Many of these vessels, it was stated, probably obtained operators upon arriving in foreign ports.

SNOW FOLLOWS TODAY'S RAIN

More gloom.

A light fall of snow is due to reach Boston tonight after a day of intermittent rain, the change being caused by approaching colder weather.

The temperature began to drop in Boston early today, while as an indication of the coming cold wave the mercury fell 29 degrees in twelve hours in Chicago, 18 degrees in Cleveland, 14 in Pittsburgh and 10 degrees in Buffalo.

Storm warnings were posted on

POLLOCK CLASSIFIES U. S. AS 90 PER CENT. MORON

New York, Feb. 19.—Channing Pollock, American dramatist, thinks the nation with a sense of humor would have excluded Countess Calhoun, also that outside of office 90 per cent. of our population are morons. He said so at a church banquet at which Sir Henry Lunn, a British editor, praised American efforts for international peace.

the coast from Jacksonville, Fla., to Eastern, Mo., and a storm of marked intensity was forecast to sweep quickly over part of the New England States, with clearing and fair weather Saturday.

A northwest gale will accompany the storm with the wind diminishing tomorrow.

THE DOUBBLE OF T. R. IS OUT IN CONCORD

If Movies Want Man to Play the Role They Can Quit Hunting Right Now

The movies want a double of "Teddy" Roosevelt to play the part of the famous President in a film.

Concord folk say that search has stopped now. In that historic town lives John M. Keyes, the personal road commissioner of Concord, and named as the speaking likeness of the great "T. R."

Keyes has often been mistaken for "Teddy" before the death of the old Maine House when the President's Club was in session. The fat man even left his dinner to pay his respects to "Roosevelt" and when they were convinced of their error they promptly elected Keyes honorary membership.

But it was at the Republican convention in 1912 in Chicago that Keyes achieved national recognition as the Roosevelt double. Everywhere he went he was followed by hundreds, each one of them firmly believing that "Teddy" was the man who drove the "Keyes" made their speeches, the speech usually being the state word "Bully" accompanied by the replica of the famous Roosevelt betched smile. At the ball park in Chicago thousands rose to their feet and cheered for minutes when Keyes entered. The movie men for the cinema.

Now—Who's Who?

The movies want a double for Theodore Roosevelt. The noted T. R. and his "replica," John M. Keyes of Concord, are shown above. Can you tell 'em apart?

IRISH CLUBS TO PLAY BIG PART IN PARADE

Societies to Lay Final Plans for March 17 Celebration at Joint Meeting Sunday

By JAMES WALSH.
Richard J. Dwyer, former national vice-president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, chairman of the executive committee of the Associated American Irish Societies, has issued a call for a special meeting of members of the various Irish organizations throughout the State, to be held on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in Hibernian Building, Dudley street, Roxbury.

The purpose of the meeting is to consider reports of committees on organization, historical features, finance and the selection of district chairmen, all in connection with the great Evacuation Day demonstration in South Boston on March 17.

"Everything is to be done in a splendid demonstration," says Chairman Dwyer. "In the interest of our country, the Irish Standing Committee of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters has recently issued the project, and the various courts located in Greater Boston will take an active part in the parade, the given by Frederick Paeng. Delegations from Irish societies all over the Commonwealth will participate in the parade which will be a part of the South Boston celebration. Chairman Dwyer has been appointed marshal of the civic division.

An important meeting of the Council of St. Patrick's County Club Men's Association, will be held in Hibernian hall, Union street, Charlestown, on Sunday afternoon. President Matthew Donovan will preside. Reports from Irish associations in the State, will be held in Hibernian Building, Roxbury, on Friday evening, February 25. Important matters will be considered, including final preparations for the annual ball of the council to be held on March 17. Officers for the ensuing year also will be elected. Joseph Magennis, president of the council, is a candidate for reelection. Katherine C. Keane of the Ladies of St. Finbar's Association, and Joe P. Moran of the County Armagh Association are the candidates for vice-president of the council.

The regular meeting of the Central Council of Irish Country Associations, made up of delegates from all the Irish Country associations in the State, will be held in Hibernian Building, Roxbury, on Friday evening, February 25. Important matters will be considered, including final preparations for the annual ball of the council to be held on March 17. Officers for the ensuing year also will be elected. Joseph Magennis, president of the council, is a candidate for reelection. Katherine C. Keane of the Ladies of St. Finbar's Association, and Joe P. Moran of the County Armagh Association are the candidates for vice-president of the council.

The purpose of this meeting was to familiarize thoroughly all those attending not only with the technical manufacturing methods by which varnishes and paints are made, but also with the many uses to which Carmote products may be put for home decorating.

The meeting was opened by an address of welcome by George C. Morton, president of the company. This was followed by an illustrated talk given by P. J. Roberts, head chemist, of the Carpenter-Morton Company.

Then followed an hour devoted to questions and answers regarding various inquiries that retail clerks receive over the counter.

The Carpenter-Morton Company, with general offices in Bulfinch street, manufactures at its Everett factory the Carmote line of varnishes, enamels and paints, as well as the famous product, Colorte, nationally known as a remover of stain and luster. The company has branches in Canada and various sections of the United States.

HOUSE WINS FIGHT TO TAX ESTATES IN NEW MEASURE

Washington, Feb. 18 (N.B.).—Branding itself on its record for progress in the matter of revenue legislation, the House appeared today to have won a battle with the Senate over the estate tax in the new bill, and in consequence the re-stamped measure soon to emerge from the conference room will see the tax restored. The Senate had completely eliminated this tax, and the action aroused great resentment in the House. At one stage the dispute became so warm the House conferees left the conference, an unprecedented event. The measure will be reported tomorrow or Monday.

BE A BOSTON BOOBY

"If Winter Comes" Author Is Shyest Bridegroom

London, Feb. 19 (N.B.).—A. R. M. Hitchman, English novelist and known as one of the shyest men in London, admitted his marriage today but is too bashful to reveal the identity of his bride.

He attained world-wide fame with his novel, "If Winter Comes."

It is understood that the bride is Miss Virginia Gupper, a musical composer. The couple sailed from England on a honeymoon trip, during which they are expected to visit the United States.

WORLD COURT IS FIRST LENTAL LECTURE TOPIC

The Rev. James I. Corrigan, S. J., professor of social ethics at Boston College, will deliver the first lecture of the Lenten course, to be given in the auditorium of the new library of Boston College, Sunday at 8:30 p. m.

Dr. Corrigan will discuss "America and the World Court." On the following Sunday, the Rev. Michael Earle, S. J., of Holy Cross College, Worcester, will lecture on "The Ethical Basis of Poetry."

On March 7, the Rev. Robert Brickerath, S. J., one of the most profound scholars of the Jesuit order, will lecture on "Catholicism—A Source of Idealism and Inspiration." March 21, James J. Walsh, M. D., D. of New York, will lecture on "Fanny Hildesheim—Four Poets." The final lecture on March 21 will be given by Frederick Paeng, M. D., of Rutherford, N. J., on "The Rivalry," a dramatic review.

BRADFORD BOY'S SLAYER DIES IN NOOSE

Mauro Hanged in Montreal for Killing Donald Carragher in Cafe Hold

Montreal, Feb. 18.—The law today avenged the slaying of 15-year-old Donald Carragher of Bradford in the Dreamland Cafe, outside of Montreal, last July. Joseph Mauro, hanged to have been a Massachusetts boy and a one-time resident of Boston, paid the penalty for young Carragher's death on the gallows in Montreal.

Almost to the moment he walked to the scaffold, Mauro and his counsel hoped for intervention on the part of the Canadian authorities which would save the hanging and give him a chance for a new trial, or a commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Their hopes died, however, when Lieutenant-Governor Bogen notified Mauro that the sentence of death, pronounced last November by Justice Wilson must be carried out.

Mauro went to his death calmly, expressing regret for his crime. When he was notified that his last chance for life had gone, the youthful thing was near collapse, but soon rallied and walked to the scaffold with a firm step.

Young Carragher was the son of Owen J. Carragher of Bradford and had been the victim of the archaic law in the Dreamland Cafe when Mauro with a companion tried to hold up the hundred or more guests there.

FOX TROT A DAY KEEPS DOCTOR AWAY, SAYS ONE

Philadelphia, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—A fox trot a day keeps the doctor away," Dr. Howard S. Anders told the Society of Arts and Letters. The exercise of dancing, he said, is an incentive to better health while music is used as a therapeutic agent in many hospitals.

FLAYS SOCIETY FOR CRIME SYMPATHY

Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, turned his attention to society in his "crime reducing program." Directing a verbal attack on Mrs. Robert E. Herrick who was quoted as having told a group of prominent women in the home of Mr. Edwin S. Wheeler, that "the crime wave was chiefly 'politics' and for them 'not to pay too much attention to cheap publicity, regarding the courts and penal institution."

Speaking at the 20th annual dinner of the Home Furnishers' Association of Massachusetts, in the Capitol Building, that also houses the Metropolitan Theatre, he said: "You are mistaken, Mrs. Herrick. Crime is rampant in our community but unfortunately it is not confined to the thug and gun-man. It permeates even our highest society, but of course the method is somewhat different. The thug, by force and violence, steals a small amount. Now and then they are captured and sent to prison. On the other hand banks and business men are pilfered and robbed, but no one goes to jail for that."

Many of us remember the Quincy Adams Shaw case where the executors filed a false inventory which resulted in defrauding the city of Boston out of hundreds of thousands of dollars. Nobody went to jail for that, but restitution was made by paying $42,000 into the treasury of the City of Boston to avoid prosecution. He added that the funds were returned to the city as a compensation fund and were used to build City Hall Annex.

The dinner is one of the big events of the Boston Furniture Exposition being held this week to encourage furniture buyers of New England to buy from the manufacturers of this section.

There are 163 exhibits, by as many manufacturers occupying

SOMERSET PARTY IS BRILLIANT

Daughter of Bayard Thayer Makes Formal Bow to Boston Society

ONE OF THE VERY LOVELIEST affairs of the entire winter, for one of the season's prettiest buds, was the very small and very smart dance Mrs. Bayard Thayer of Beacon street gave at the Hotel Somerset to formally introduce her debutante daughter, Miss Mabel Bayard Thayer.

AS WAS TO BE expected at a Thayer occasion the guest list of not more than 300 included any number of handsome dowagers, Mrs. Thayer's contemporaries, who looked down upon the sumptuous scene from similar high balconies.

TO SPIRITED strains of an orchestra imported for the evening the more youthful couples danced over the gleaming ballroom floor, all part of a blithe and rain-bow tinted canvas much like a fête of the brilliant French Court Days.

NEVER HAD THE Somerset's stately ballroom with its Louis XIV appointments presented a vista more rarely beautiful. Princes' apartments from Mrs. Thayer's town and country houses were hung at intervals about the walls.

THESE, IN TURN, served as background to emphasize the gorgeous riot of color, of plants set against them—cascades of red and tender China lilies, delicately tinted anemones and gay pink mimosa.

ONE PINK bloom was massed about a specially marvelous cowl which was the curtain-like backdrop for Mrs. Thayer and her daughter as they received their guests. Mother and daughter, the one in black, the other in white, are handsome in the extreme.

MRS. THAYER'S black velvet with diamonds was a stately creation setting off to perfection her beautifully coiffed hair. A cascade of brilliant white pearls on her forehead repeated the glint of crystal on the gown itself, and there was a slenderly modeled train part of the formal array.

THE DAUGHTER'S dress frock was simplicity itself. A star-white chiffon touched lightly with glowing silver threads that had given it modish "this 'Nida" note. The slender silhouette of the gown frilled out into a ripple at the hemline, altogether an effect essentially bud-like.

MISS THAYER carried a small M and formal bouquet of white camellias. These lovely white flowers that run the color gamut from paper white through dawn pink and so into a gorgeous tropic-tint rose-red. The softer staff of fifty were the clear white camellias as their hostess, and camellias in every tint and tone graced the supper room.

THESE RARELY seen at the blue house also came in all their profusion from the conservatories at "Hawthorne Hill," the Bayard Thayer estate at Lancaster, which also produced the ballroom's coral decorations.

SUPPER WAS served in the blue room lighted by tall candles set about in brilliant holders and clustered camellias marked each table—the large center table for the bud and her youthful friends and the other smaller tables.

NATHANIEL THAYER, brother of the bud, was best usher in a most notable squad. City in all, which did the honors of the ballroom with much aplomb and finish. This corps included machine numbers of the Thayer, Patten, Higgin and allied clans all belonging to the suitable family association.

TWO LARGE and important attractions of the coming holiday after a diversification of interest. If one's penchant is for the blue-blooded elite, then Mechanism Hall and the Eastern Day Club's annual show will be a magnet.

IF MUSIC of the folk and national sort is high favorite, then Symphony Hall and the International Music Festival will be an irresistible lure. And a riot of color and song is in the prediction.

SONGS OF ARIDIAN countries sung by native sons and daughters is the large feature of the evening. His Excellency the Governor lends his genial presence and official sanction to the occasion and Thayer hotel to help Clerk Henry get the luggage out.

Tenants in a row of houses in Albion street, in the rear of the Tremont street building, were also bed ridden and many fled to the street. A heavy cloud of smoke poured into the Hotel Appleton, filling the corridors and driving lodgers from the fire escape.

Hundreds were taken to the street when they saw firemen racing aerial ladders and the report spread through the crowd that men and women were trapped on upper floors by the smoke, but the firemen quickly learned that every one had escaped. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

BACK BAY BLAZE.

The house in which the steam boiler blew up in St. Stephen street rocked as though by an earthquake and many tenants were thrown to the floor by the concussion. Blind steam filled the hallways and caused a mad rush for the elevators and stairways, as the cry of "Fire" rang out.

Police and firemen helped men, women and children from the building. The street was jammed with spectators attracted by the roar of the explosion which was caused, fire officials said, by failure of a safety valve to work when pressure in the boiler reached too high.

Creation of a civic centre in and around the Back Bay (imperial) properties of the Boston & Albany Railroad as a territorial monument or war memorial, or a combination of both, was urged by Representative Albert A. Rutherford of Boston today at a legislative hearing.

SPINSTER'S IRE UP IN SUIT FOR $400,000 TOT

The $100,000 "Blackwith Baby," whose father is Larry Beale, Framingham, was now driver, according to the signed statement of the child's mother, in today the central figure in a courtroom drama in San Francisco, where Boston lawyers are fighting for his custody.

A non-male lady who adopted the boy, later letters that passed between her and the mother's sisters in London in support of her claim in the child.

A Boston lawyer, Larry Beale, was a fisherman of the son of Lorraine Beale, who was an heiress with property situated largely in Norway, Sweden and Alaska. A church worker of Berkeley, Cal., wanted the infant very much, and is firmly opposing the claims of Attorney Harry P. B. Dolan of Cambridge and Charles E. Houghton of Newwood, who alleges that when the mother was dying she remanded her baby, then four days old, to their care.

"Lorraine, once devoted her life to good causes but got into bad company," wrote the Boston May and Jane Anthony of Providence to the Berkeley deaconess, according to letters her attorney read. The mother also wrote they were "found" when they did not hear from Lorraine while she was in Los Angeles, and they referred to the baby's father as "black sheep of a good family."

For a long time he was disturbed about her relations with the man but thought there was no reason to worry, they wrote. "It is now time to think of the future. We know your large heart and that you will want to help this little baby."

1,500,000 SUFFER FROM BERI-BERI IN JAPAN

Tokyo Feb. 19 (AP)—There are 1,500,000 beriberi sufferers in Japan. It is estimated by health authorities and the disease is increasing yearly. According to statistics, beriberi caused 26,724 deaths in 1927. There were about 10,000 deaths in 1910. Beriberi is a disease of rice-eating races, experts asserting that the absence of certain vitamins in polished rice is responsible.

SAYS 'RUM RING' WAS ARMED

Total of the alleged "Rum Ring" continued in East Cambridge Court today. Lawrence Lavan, twenty-one-year-old, New York youth, testified that in June, 1925, David Hoffman, an Irishman, told the corporation was going to break up, because some members wanted to go to New York. Hoffman was said to have asked Lavan to come with him, but the youth refused and went into partnership with a man named Adolberg. Asked whether the members of the rum-running gang were armed, Lavan said "Yes" or "No" or "Yes." In conversation with Hoffman, Lavan admitted he had prepared himself about an auto crash that occurred last May 2.

He said he had run down two police cars on the night of May 2 and was cited. After the trial in which he gave false testimony, Lavan deposed the story truthfully to District Attorney Deane.

FINDS $600 DIAMONDS AT BRIDGEWATER FARM

Nobody knew that the inside of the East Bridgewater town hall had been the glitter of a million diamonds, but now it is a fact. Chief Everett Russell reported that he had found the rings of Mrs. Elizabeth Pomeroy.

Mrs. Pomeroy lives at 100 Elm farm, and has been a resident there not an inmate—since the big storm when she was trapped in a building with her home in a fire. She has no permanent home, but she has to make a home at whatever place she happens to be employed.

She lost the $600 worth of diamonds in the San Francisco fire. Her husband, a daughter, and a son were killed. And that's the story.

And that's the story.

HELD IN TOWN SHORTAGE

Brooklyn, Feb. 19.—Henry C. Lee, former town treasurer of Marion, who promised full restitution when State and town received a shortage of $2,250 in his funds, was held in town today. Lee is charged with larceny. He purchased a car and it was seized by Sheriff William Wilbur the day of $2,000 in which he has been held in prison, was continued.

A Live Serial of Love and Temptation Right Here In Boston

READ THIS FIRST:
FLOSSIE and MARY ROSE MIDDLETON are two pretty sisters, the daughters of a widowed mother. They work for Dexter & Co., big Congress street bond firm.
Mary Rose is secretary to the sales manager, JOHN MANNERS, and is in love with him. But he's engaged to DORIS HINIO, an heiress. Because of her feeling for him, Mary Rose repeatedly refuses to marry DR. TOM FITZROY.
Flossie, a born vamp, carries on a flirtation with the head of the concern, HILARY DEXTER, although she's going to marry his secretary, SAM JESSUP.
John Manners falls in love with Mary Rose as he never has been in love in all his life, and tells her so. That night the sisters have a quarrel, and to "get even" with Mary Rose, Flossie tells John that she is "just stringing him along," and intends to marry Dr. Tom Fitzroy. John believes her lie, and Mary Rose is so hurt by his coldness that she decides to leave Dexter's.

One night Dexter goes too far in his love-making, and Flossie learns how little respect married men have for the girls they profess to love! She walks home from her joy-ride with him, and the next day she elopes with the faithful Sam.
Sam finds the jewels that Dexter had given Flossie before her marriage. He and Flossie have a battle, and he leaves Dexter and becomes private secretary to Morrell, a steel man.
One night Tom Fitzroy has his neck broken in an automobile accident, and Mary Rose marries him in the hospital. He lingers all day, but the following night, which happens to be Christmas Eve, she is sent for because he is dying.

In the sunshine of late afternoon, the hospital seemed an almost cheerful place when Mary Rose and her mother came to it.
Nurses flitted here and there. One or two of them looked curiously at Mary Rose as she and Mrs. Middleton followed Tom's father up to Room 31. They had all heard the story of the wedding last night, of course, and wanted to see the bride who was soon to be a widow.
The white door of Tom's room stood open, and a band of slanting sunlight lay across the bed where he lay. He looked better to Mary Rose than he had last night—and she wondered if he really were dying.
He looked up at her and his lips moved as if he were trying to say something.
"Do you want to kiss you?" she asked, her voice breaking. She knew that he did.

URGE HARDWICK BE HARVARD GRADUATE

Pressure on Hero of '14 Team; Free Hand Is Demanded

By HERB TREAT

WHO will be the head coach of Harvard football in 1926? This question, which has been asked more than any other during the past few months, now seems to be answerable.

Buntington "Tacks" Hardwick, of the class of 1915, is on the verge of accepting the post. I understand that he demands the elimination of all interference on the part of the powerful committee and the dressed faculty before he definitely says yes.

It is a natural stand for Hardwick—the man who stood for absolute individual rule and would not subordinate himself to the powers that be.

Timothy, captain of next Fall's team, is the most prominent and day in and out to get the right man. He wants Hardwick, and right now is employing every available means to eliminate that powerful group which has in the past years been a constant menace to the head coach.

Tacks Hardwick does not need any "three about" advertising to inform the public who he is or what he stands for. We all know him as Harvard's most versatile athlete.

He is a He-Man, and his word is law, as was his former teacher, Percy Haughton.

But his indomitable courage will not be enough to get him the job. He will need the support of the faculty and the student body. He will need the support of the faculty and the student body. He will need the support of the faculty and the student body.

Inside Story of How I Split With Kearns—By Jack Dempsey

'Kent 50-50 Pact at Big Sacrifice to Play Fair'

Luis Angel Firpo, Wild Bull of the Pampas, Jack Dempsey made $470,000 on his fighting career. He cut this 50-50 with him, losing $200,000 in order to play fair on his agreement.

CHAPTER 3

DURING 1917 I was sick for a while and was unable to do much fighting. Kearns kept shopping around and was all set to make matches for me, but my condition was such that I could not go through with them.

I was sorry about this whole thing because it meant a bad break for Kearns, who figured that he now was all set to cash in rather heavily on my ability as a fighter.

In all my fights up to that time I had gone through with the arrangements whereby Kearns' cut was 25 per cent. But I felt rather sorry for Kearns because he was not making the expected money out of me. So I said to him one day: "You have been out of luck in making much money out of me, but I will try to make up for it in this way. In all of my future fights, until I cancel the arrangement, you can take 50 per cent. of the money I earn for your end, but out of that 50 per cent. you will have to pay the expenses. How does that sound?"

That arrangement made that day verbally with Jack Kearns remained in force throughout all of the years that Kearns was my manager. At the time I made the deal I had no idea that I eventually would be fighting for purses that ranged between $100,000 and close to $400,000, which meant from $50,000 to $200,000 for Kearns—less the expenses.

But even when my earnings hit $1,000,000 or so in a year, I never cancelled the arrangement, although I had the right to do so whenever I wanted to.

It was possible, I felt, to make a deal with Kearns as much the best of it as I could. The "cut" meant tremendous proportions on that 50-50 basis, because the expenses did not average very high and I headed them with a little economy Kearns could have netted at least 40 per cent. for himself of the really big earnings from my fights.

"I Had a Hundred Chances to Fire Jack Kearns"

Inasmuch as Kearns and I did not have a written agreement before August, 1923, I could have reduced his cut, had I so desired, to 35 per cent., 40 per cent., 5 per cent.—or I could have "fired" him as my manager.

In 1920, 1921, 1922 and early in 1923 the world was full of fellows who perhaps were just as smart as Kearns, but who were not as successful as Kearns—and they gladly would have handled my business for 5 or 10 per cent.

Getting big purses was no trick then—not while Tex Rickard was in the gambler's grip of his gambling mood. Rickard figured that I was the best drawing card in the boxing game, that the public would pay heavy admission prices to see me perform—and so he was mighty anxious to stage me because he knew that my fights, no matter how huge the purse he dealt out to me, would net him a profit.

I am citing the situation that existed between Kearns and myself in those days just because I want to make clear now, that if I were a person inclined to break contracts, I could have easily severed the verbal one then—and left Kearns out in the cold.

But I like to play fair, whether the Kearns partisans give me credit for it or not. I felt indebted to Kearns for some of the things he had done for me and I wanted him to get the maximum reward.

So when I had a hundred chances to "fire" Kearns, or to cut his percentage, I retained him to get the 50-50 proposition stand and would still be in a partnership with Kearns getting the same "cut" if Kearns and I hadn't disagreed over matters which forced me to precipitate the split between us.

The only written contract that ever existed between Jack Kearns and myself, and upon which he threatened to file a lawsuit, was forced upon both of us.

When I was material to mix it with Luis Firpo in New York the

LEGION CARDS 12 RELAYS

Henry Hormel Enters Dash; Gorman Hopes to Get Leo Darringer

"HENRY" HORMEL of Worcester Academy, who has been turning up a number of tracks this winter, has sent in his entry for the American Legion games to Manager Charley Gorman. Hormel will be in the dash up against Edward McGrath of Brooklyn. This pair had quite a battle in the B. A. A. consolation dash, and are ranked a bit ahead of the other entrants, of which there are now 12.

De Hart Hubbard, who this week broke the world's record for 50 yards indoors, will be the sole starter from scratch, and will also be without handicap in the 50-yard hurdles. In the latter event Bob Summers, the Nook and Greenwood lumber-copier, will make his debut in open competition.

Manager Gorman hopes to be able to announce the entry of Leo Larri-ves for the Legion mile.

There will be intense relay sprinkled throughout the program, in which more than thirty teams will compete.

Hyde Park, East Boston High, South Boston High and Jamaica Plain High will meet in a four-cornered hockey relay.

Newton and New Hampshire, and Williams and Boston University are two teams which should prove to be features of the meet.

Maine and Northeastern will match wits in another team race which should be interesting. The other events listed among the team races include high and long jumps.

State Athletic Commission located upon looking over the contract between Kearns and myself. It wanted to see if the contract was perfectly legal and regular.

The Commission, a long time ago, fixed 33 1/3 per cent. as the maximum which a manager could get from a fighter, perhaps on the theory that no manager, no matter what he had done for a fighter, was entitled to more than 33 1/3 per cent. at the extreme outside.

When Kearns informed the Commission that we had no written contract and never had one, the Commission told him we'd have none or I couldn't fight in New York State.

Later Kearns came to me, told me about it, and I said that if we had to have a written contract we'd have to have one that he should see to drawing it up.

Kearns pointed out to me that the contract would give him only 33 1/3 per cent., but I said that I was to get 50 per cent. of the gross and that you were to get the other 50 per cent. and pay expenses. Well, that still goes, but the contract, as it was, was 50 per cent. in the usual way and we will figure it that 10 2/3 per cent. is the cost of the expenses, which leaves you 33 1/3 for yourself. In full keeping with the rule.

I heard nothing further from Kearns about the matter for about a week. Then he came to me and said the contract in his name. He said that he had signed his own name, but that the Commission had turned it back, insisting that I must personally sign the contract.

So, instead of having a new contract drawn, or erasing my name, which Kearns had played there, I took a pen and traced the outline of my signature, which Kearns had written.

That is the contract which is now file in the New York State Athletic Commission. It was for three years and expires on August 3, 1925.

My earnings in the Firpo fight were $470,000. One-third of that is around $157,000 as much as Kearns was entitled to get under the contract then in force.

But I cut the purse 50-50 with Kearns and his cut of the $225,000—a difference of nearly $80,000 between what Kearns should have received under the contract and what I allowed him.

And yet Kearns and our friends take the attitude that I didn't play fair with him.

Tomorrow in the four-page Saturday Sport Herald, Dempsey will tell how he settled with Kearns after the Firpo fight.

CONWAY WITH SOX

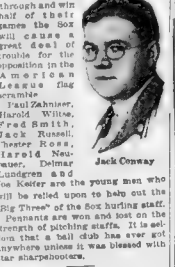

By JACK CONWAY

CINCINNATI, Feb. 18.—The 1925 Red Sox machine will be built around three great pitchers—Howard Ehmke, Charley Ruffing and Fred Winfield. This trio stands forth as the foundation of one of the best hurling staffs in big league baseball.

Manager Leo Fohl has a flock of other pitchers, and if a couple of them come through and win half of their games, the Sox will cause a great deal of trouble for the opposition in the American League.

Paul Zahner, Harold White, Jack Russell, Chester Ross, Harold Newbauer, Delmar Lindgren and Joe Keefe are the young men who will be relied upon to help out the "Big Three" of the Sox hurling staff.

The Sox are won and lost on the strength of pitching staffs. It is seldom that a ball club has ever got anywhere unless it was blessed with star sharpshooters.

Jack Conway

THE Red Sox in the days of Jimmy Collins and Chick Stahl last year, Bill Dahlen, George Winters and other reliable boppers. Fohl joined the days of Joe Wood, George Foster, Ray Collins, Dutch Leonard and Fred Schott, Charley Hall, Babe Ruth and Ernie Shore.

It is natural, then, that Fohl, with Ehmke, Ruffing and Winfield to rely on, has explicit confidence in his pitchers. Give the Sox a little betting strength and they will be heard from.

The Sox had some pretty good hitters last year, but they couldn't deliver in the pinch. Bob Quinn recently told the sport writers that he was downing at the bat, when there was a man on first base, that many of them "choked" up when there was a runner on second or third base ready to score.

MEANWHILE the Red Sox pipe is rattling along on its way into Idaho, Louisville, Ky., is the next main point we hit. Then for the final lap of the journey to New Orleans, where the battery men are billed to commence practice on Monday.

Trade, Mechanic Arts, Jamaica Plain and Hyde Park are the ruling favorites over Dorchester. Commerce, Charlestown and East Boston respectively in the quartet of hockey games to be played at the Arena tomorrow morning. The four matches have the league leaders, Mechanic Arts and Trade School, meeting good fast teams and a lapse by either of the pace setters will cost them the championship.

In the opening game tomorrow Trade will face Dorchester. Despite the fact that they are the first team because of a school rumor Coach Gerald Dewey of Dorchester is a rounded, together a good, clever stickhandling team which has yet to be beaten. Trade, however, has not accounted to any opponent.

The square stance means having the feet even at which other on a ball, paring the direction of the ball to take. When the stance is taken, the meaning is that the right foot is drawn up nearer to the ball.

It would show that the right foot is the right foot. It would show that the right foot is the right foot. It would show that the right foot is the right foot.

FOXY GRANDPA AND HIS INTERESTING DAILY BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby, "as we sat on the brow of a hill overlooking one of the lakes of Killarney, I never saw a prettier lake in my life. No wonder people talk about the lakes of Killarney. I don't blame them."

"Ireland is a beautiful country," Bobby, I agreed, "and this is one of the most beautiful spots. I wonder if this is the lake about which the legend is told."

Bobby straightened up and his face brightened. "Is there story about Killarney?" he asked quickly.

"Yes," I said, "there is an old legend which has been handed down for centuries."

"Do you know it?" asked the boy.

"Let me see if I can remember it," and I scratched my head. "Three hundred years ago," I started, "there in Killarney there was a great fertile valley, where farmers raised fine corn crops and where there were rich pastures where their cattle grazed and grew fat and gave fine milk."

"And right in the middle of this valley was a very strange spring. They called it the Fairy Fountain," Bobby, Foxy Grandpa asked the curious Bobby.

"I'll tell you," I said. "Just hold your horses."

"To this fountain every morning and evening came the pretty young daughter of the farmer who owned the land nearby, and there from the fountain she and her serving-maids drew the water and put it in great jugs and carried it on their strong young shoulders to the farmhouses."

"How the spring gushed forth with such power that it was necessary to keep it covered with a great flat stone to keep the water from flooding the valley. So the young Irish girl would lift off the stone to get the water and then the young farmer's daughter would put it back in place after they had finished."

"But one night—a beautiful summer evening just before sunset, when the serving-maids had started on their way and the young mistress was turning to cover the Fairy Fountain with the great flat stone, and when she finally caught her breath—for she was so surprised at seeing him she sat down and conversed talking to him.

"And the knight—well, he thought that she was the loveliest girl he had ever seen, and right then and there he planned knight and the farmer's daughter fell in love with each other."

"It was a lovely evening and, like all young people, they thought it would be nice to take a walk. So he tied his horse to a tree and put his arm around the maiden and off they wandered in the twilight."

"But what happened? When she returned from the hill where they had been walking, instead of seeing the valley where she had been born and grown up, there was a lake. She had forgotten to put the stone on the Fairy Fountain."

"Was anybody drowned?" asked Bobby.

"Fortunately no," I replied, "and the knight married the farmer's daughter and took her to live in his castle, where they lived happily ever after."

"Do you know," said Bobby, "I should think if you forget things like that it would be very dangerous to be in love."

"I've heard it so, sometimes," Bobby, I laughed.

The Prince Goes Golfing

Look Like This, If You Want to Look Like the Prince of Wales

This is His Royal Highness Dressed Up in "Plus Fours" for a Round of Golf

Some young Americans WANT TO BE like George Washington or ACT like Lincoln, and some would like TO LOOK like the Prince of Wales. This is written for those in the last category. The costume is simple enough, a fancy, rather dashing sweater, cut low in the neck and short at the waist, and plus fours, the very baggy knickerbockers that come far down the leg, conveniently concealing the fact that the wearer has lean shanks and no "calfs."

Add a cap tilted to one side, fancy stockings, low shoes, and there you are, a Prince of Wales, so far as DRESS is concerned.

As a matter of fact, the Prince plays less attention to his clothes than do many that imitate him, and in that respect he is the despair of London tailors.

They want to set new fashions and "pronounced" fashions that the styles may change and in order that a lot of imitators may order new clothes.

The Prince of Wales, an intelligent young person, in various ways, cares little how he dresses. He takes whatever is convenient, and even wears his clothes a long time—a terrible sin from the tailor's point of view.

Therefore, the British tailors have given up relying on the Prince for new styles, and turn to the young "exquisites" of the cabarets and night clubs to provide sartorial inspiration.

For something worth while about clothes, stop at the Public Library, get Carlyle's book, "Sartor Resartus," and read it.

Insuring An Oasis

Boulder Dam Project Will Create Big Market for Products of Other Parts of the Country

Ten thousand men out on the Colorado River in Nevada and Arizona will need shoes from Massachusetts, clothing from New York and Illinois, bread from the wheatfields of Kansas, Iowa and the mid-West, and hats from other Eastern States, while the implements with which they work will come from Ohio or elsewhere east of the Mississippi.

They will need all these things when the Boulder dam is started, and yet these communities will not be taxed a nickel to meet the expenses.

This great development, the most important national construction since the Panama Canal was built, will be paid for and supported by funds from power consumers in the Southwest and water users on the lower Colorado and in cities nearby needing a domestic supply.

It has been estimated that five years will be required to finish this $125,000,000 project, which will preserve to the people the Government's last great undeveloped national resource. A bond issue will provide the revenue, but repayment will be from the sale of power and water.

The support of Progressives and Democrats is apparently assured; it is a measure they would naturally champion. The Administration, therefore, has but to say the word and the deed will be done.

Wear 'em, Girls, Wear 'em!

Around the House or in the Office, the Smock Is a Useful Garment

Whimsical Dame Fashion, after frowning upon manufacturers of cotton textiles for two or three years and driving some of them perilously close to bankruptcy, appears at last to have taken pity on the poor fellows and at least to be making eyes at them.

Last year, it was the sudden demand for cretzone coats that gave the manufacturer of sheetings something to be happy about; for the past three or four weeks the call for SMOCKS has kept him busy.

The smock appears to be much more than a passing fad. It is an ADDITIONAL garment, one of the few things which, in recent years, have meant an INCREASED USE of cotton goods.

The New Englander will do everything in his power to increase the popularity of the smock.

Signs of Spring

HOW VENUS HELPS ASTRONOMER

By Garrett P. Serviss, Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"How is the taking of Venus' parallax in accordance with the sun performed? Also, is it true that no time is exact—C. D. A.?"

YOU refer to the use of transit of Venus across the sun's disk as a means of measuring the sun's parallax, and so its distance from the earth. This method is very interesting as an example of the astronomer's ingenious way of getting around obstacles, and also for its historic importance; but the latest chance to apply it occurred in 1882, and there will not be another until 2068.

The gist of the subject may be understood with the aid of our little diagram, where we see the disk of the sun, as seen from the earth, on the left; the earth itself on the right, and Venus at two points in its orbit between the earth and the sun, at V and V'.

Now suppose that Venus, moving in her orbit in the direction indicated, comes exactly between the sun and the earth, so that she is visible from the earth like a round black dot moving slowly across the sun. Let "A" and "B" be two stations near the earth's equator, but on opposite sides of the globe. At these stations observers are ready to watch the transit.

It is evident that the observer at "A" will be the first to see Venus beginning its transit at "B." But not many minutes later, at "B," in fact the observer at "B" will see Venus "A." Each observer carefully notes by the same standard time the moment of the apparent contact of Venus with the sun's edge. They also know in advance their respective longitudes. In going from V to V' Venus describes the angle V' V B, which is the same as the angle A B B.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson, Reg. U. S. Patent Office

"HALL we let teacher hang little Oscar up by his thumbs when he makes his arithmetic lesson?"

"Horror!" you exclaim, "what a barbaric thought. How can you even imagine such a terrible thing?"

And yet many teachers inflict torture upon children which is as degrading to the child spirit as these abominations could possibly be to child flesh.

Before we proceed further with this mean article, let me state that I am not a teacher. I am deeply interested in education and have the greatest faith in the kind of parent and sterling character of most educators.

There's one little piece of frightfulness practiced by certain teachers which needs showing up hard. And the one who asks me to show it up is a teacher herself, the principal of a certain school in this city. She writes:

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

ONE of the strange but happy delusions, under which a woman still labors, is that she can hold a man in love by her wiles.

Every brilliant clever woman prays that her husband may be born beautiful and dumb.

—So that she will be loved. "Tactful and clever-you'll-it's" manner is a skeleton key that will fit every woman's heart.

TWO THINGS FORM OUR CHARACTER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There are some things in nature which are apparently simple but which are really compounds.

One of these is air, which is a compound of nitrogen and oxygen. Another is water, which is composed of oxygen and hydrogen.

There is a spiritual compound which corresponds to these, in the substance we call character.

Character is not a simple thing depending upon what is born in a man, of what is his nature, but it is a compound of two things.

There is the thing that happens to a man, which we call his environment, on the one hand, and the nature of the man on the other.

These two things mix and form the combination called character.

A man's final nature does not depend upon what happens to him, but is a combination of what happens to him and is born in him.

For instance, a Turk killed himself and the whole bunch of his wives the other day because life seemed intolerable without them, and Isadora Duncan's ex-husband shuffled off this mortal coil because he could not live without Isadora.

The world on the contrary is filled with people who under various stages of bereavement live on heroically.

The best that is in us is called out by danger, by deprivation and disaster. When calamity comes to some men it seems to rouse them to greater effort, while others sink beneath it.

In the one case there is a combination of the event and the nature to make a splendid compound of heroism. In the other case it is as though there were too much hydrogen or nitrogen, and the result is a deleterious compound or a blow-up.

There is no doubt that circumstances have something to do with a man's destiny, and there is no doubt also that a man's destiny is largely what he makes it. Practical experience, however, demonstrates that a man's destiny really is a combination of the two things—the circumstances, and the spirit with which he meets them. This results in that apparently simple compound we call character.

MEDBURY SAYS

DO YOU PLAY SAFE OR TAKE A FINANCIAL CHANCE?

Another budgeting season has begun.

You always did hate "figures" so you lump off a general sum of which to live. Then you decide to spend the rest of your income on some expensive luxury.

You are not calculating upon possible misfortune or illness. You feel well and life looks prosperous today.

You calculate that you will be able to work every week and you get a definite income to figure on for support. Why not take a chance?

To be sure it would be unusual for you to go a whole year without something happening to cause you a much larger outlay than you counted on, but you are going to take a chance this year anyway.

You want that expensive car or you want a membership in an exclusive club. Perhaps you have not realized that the membership fee is the least part of the expense as clubs go.

Suppose a member of your family should require a nurse or hospital service for an extended period this next year?

You are not playing safe unless you set aside a sum for possible conditions of this nature.
